Is Addiction Really a 'Disease'?

Featuring Dr. Kevin McCauley

Kevin McCauley, M.D. graduated from the Medical College of Pennsylvania in 1992. After joining the United States Navy, he served as Flight Surgeon to a Marine helicopter squadron at Marine Corps Air Station Tustin in Orange County, California, and then a Marine F/A-18 Hornet training squadron at Marine Corps Air Station El Toro. Dr. McCauley now lives in Park City, Utah and is the co-founder of The Institute for Addiction Study, a group dedicated to helping individuals, families, and professionals understand addiction. Dr. McCauley is the Director and Author of Pleasure Unwoven: A Personal Journey About Addiction, a video essay that addresses the topic; Is Addiction Really a 'Disease'? McCauley's presentation will explore the arguments for and against this vital debate, reviewing the latest neuroscientific research about addiction. He is a strong physician advocate for the rights of addicts as patients.
